Networking sessions provide occasions for you to share ideas, and which can help to reduce intestinal problems.

Based on delegate feedback the ‘highlights’ program has been extended this year to two days starting at the convenient time of 1100 hrs on day one and finishing at 1550 hrs on day two.

The conference has a strong technical program, in which internationally and regionally renowned speakers from academia and industry will present regionally relevant research and trial data and the latest thinking to provide actionable, take-home messages to help broiler producers and feed millers improve productivity, profit margins and sustainability.

Following strong feedback at the 2016 Broiler Feed Quality ‘highlights’ Conference we will address three major themes and also look at how to translate the latest research into on-farm results:

- Translating the latest broiler research into practice - covering a broad range of topics, this session will bring you recent research and advances, translating broiler nutrition science into best practice and commercial gain.
- Reducing feed costs - With feed accounting for 70% of total broiler production costs, optimisation of feed costs is critically important in determining profitability. Feed additives offer reformulation of diets by improving the digestibility and availability of protein, starch and fats, without sacrificing bird’s performance.
- Using alternative raw materials and by-products – the growing societal and regulatory pressure on poultry and livestock producers to change their production practices as antibiotic resistance has become a major public health concern. Feed additives offer a toolbox of complementary products with specific modes of action, that work together to support animals’ performance while maintaining performance and profitability.

I look forward to seeing you in Jakarta.

0900 SPECIAL PRESENTATION
The fundamental importance of effective pen trials design & objectives that conclude with trial data of significance and value
Dr Tewan van Cerve – Head of Global Technical Management – Poultry, EW Nutrition, GmbH, Germany

After graduating as a DVM, Dr Twan completed a PhD, both at Utrecht University, combined with teaching of Poultry Health as junior lecturer. He then joined Nutreco, as Science Poultry Nutrition, working in Spain, before joining Cargill Animal Nutrition, where he was responsible for Global R&D activities. From February 2017 Dr Twan joined EW Nutrition, as Head of Global Technical Management Poultry, and in that role he leverages both his nutritional and veterinary expertise to supporting the ever-expanding local technical teams.

REDUCING THE USE OF IN-FEED ANTIBIOTICS

0935 Raising broiler chickens in an antibiotic free era – the myths and the myth busters
Dr Sudipto Haldar, Director Research & Development, Aginvet Consultancy Pty Ltd, India

After obtaining his Bachelor degree in Veterinary Science in 1995, Dr Haldar did his post-graduate at the National Dairy Research Institute, Kamal, and then obtained his PhD in Animal Nutrition, following which he entered into teaching and research in animal nutrition in the University of Animal and Fishery Sciences, Kolkata, India. In his present role of Director, Research and Development of ACPL, Dr Haldar liaises with organisations that want to test the efficacy of their products in poultry production under the typical tropical climatic conditions. Apart from the research and development work, Dr Haldar is engaged in providing nutritional support in clients in India, Bangladesh, Nepal and Bhutan.

1010 Importance of gut health to optimise broiler performance
Dr Kiran Doranalli, Global Technical Support Manager, Evonik Germany

Dr Doranalli holds a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and Masters in Animal Nutrition from the University of Agricultural Sciences, Veterinary College, Bangalore, India. He completed his PhD from the University of Saskatchewan, Department of Animal and Poultry Science, Canada. His main research focus during Master’s and PhD program was on dietary manipulation to optimise protein utilisation efficiency. After completing his PhD, he worked as a research fellow at the same University for a Canola Council of Canada funded project for about one and half years.

1045 Coffee break

1115 Feeding for GAIN (GAstroINtestinal functionality) – a holistic approach
Dr Pietro Celi, Senior Scientist, DSM Nutritional Products, Animal Nutrition and Health, USA

As Senior Scientist, Dr Celi is Project Director for the Gut Health Platform; he also provides scientific support to the Global R&D and Eubiotic teams. He has been involved in studies into animal physiology for a number of years and during this time he has worked on a variety of livestock species. Dr Celi’s core expertise is the study of the interactions between nutrition, metabolism and reproduction in domestic animals with particular interest in the study of oxidative stress biomarkers.

1150 Lunch

1250 Responsible use of antibiotics and the role of functional feed additives after AGPs ban
Daniel Ramirez, Business Development Manager – Digestive Performance, Nutriad International, Belgium

Daniel received his degree in Veterinary Medicine at the Metropolitan University in Mexico, a Master in Animal Production and health at the National University of Mexico, and holds a Master in Business Administration (MBA) at the Porto Business School in Portugal. He has over 10 years of professional work experience in the food industry, where he had received an extensive insight in biotech, animal nutrition, animal production and animal management systems. Daniel joined Nutriad in 2016.

FORMULATING USING ALTERNATIVE RAW MATERIALS AND BY-PRODUCTS

1325 KEYNOTE ADDRESS
Maximising the use of alternative raw materials: challenges and strategies
Dr Ravi Rawdron, Professor of Poultry Science, Institute of Veterinary, Animal and Biomedical Sciences, Massey University, New Zealand
